

COVID-19 Update for Backyard Berry Plants updated 1/24/2022

Remember that all our stock is potted and can grow and travel any time of the year with no issues. Potted stock gives you the ease of mind to know that you don't have to rush to plant. Orders coming in now from southern climes, unless indicated for later spring shipping, will usually ship when we have clement weather for pulling and prepping plants. Orders to mid latitude states (N.Carolina across TN to OK and N Tx) will begin shipping in late February to early March; and zone 5-6 mid March to late April; zone 4 late April to mid May.

We thank everyone for their patience, and do feel free to contact me by email (keith@backyardberryplants.com) or text (812-340-1140) with questions about your order or planting. PLEASE DO NOT CALL AND LEAVE A MESSAGE. There is not as much time in the day as I would like and winter prep for the nursery and farm is still going on here.

Do see our Planting Guide and Care Guide on the website.

The alpine plugs ship via USPS Priority Mail (though for some we are putting in with your ground order if you are in the Midwest or near East), and all else ships via UPS Ground. I will send tracking to the email address provided on your order form.

Thank you all very much for your support, it means a lot to us and to Organic Agriculture!
